Importance: High

I am a taxpayer and citizen of the United States of America and Citizen of the Great Sunny State of Arizona. I vote in every election. I am writing to protest ACC's recently made sweeping changes to the state's renewable energy programs, including the elimination of financial incentives for rooftop solar for businesses and drastic reductions in incentives for residential solar.

It is a shameful and retarded thing to do, and only good if you like sick and dead people, and brown air, and / or if you are in the pockets of big coal, big gas, and big oil.

The Commission must reverse its' decision to further pollute our environment while letting clean energy go dramatically untapped.

The government subsidizes the dirty energy businesses to the tune of billions and billions of dollars, while we all pay another billions and billions in healthcare costs caused by the crap the dirty energy businesses pump into our planet. Not to mention that we are filling the air with CO2 and other greenhouse gases which are causing havoc to our weather, and that evil is just getting started.

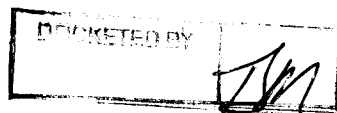

It is time to stop the lies and stop subsidizing dirty energy and use our tax dollars wisely to foster clean renewable alternatives.

Sincerely

Sean W. Ellington

Subject: Arizona should be leading, not following anyone re: alternative energy sources

Solar or photovoltaic power, and heated water systems are among the options. But they are a necessary energy source component for the future of Arizonans.

Arizona has a 50 year history of cutting edge research in energy research. John Yellott, PhD, ASU was a world famous researcher in 60's and 70's. Arizona did not capitalize on his work. (I'm proud to have met him.) Arizona now has sustainability colleges at ASU and UofA. IT'S A NO BRAINER that Arizona should be leading, not just the US but the world in these areas of research and implementation.

APS can adapt to changing energy needs. It will be ok; the share holders will continue to make money, or they will just invest elsewhere in the energy production spectrum.

I'm a native for all intents, 1954-present, and we have been shooting ourselves in the foot my entire life. Your duty is to the long term interests of all Arizonans, now and the future. Look ahead, be forward thinking.

Sincerely - Mark Lymer

Subject: Renewable Energy Program

Dear Commissioner;

I am writing as a citizen that believes that you are not serving the public interest in the decisions you have proposed concerning the Renewable Energy Program. Some of you made it clear in your campaign that there was no desire to make Arizona, a state with an abundance of solar resources, a low grade player and not a leader in the solar power industry. We now are at the point where not only is the AZCC not advancing the policies that make a difference, but are scaling it back. This is an outrage, to the point that even other elective officials are requesting that citizens raise their voice as I am to challenge the decision.

The power companies want consistency in regulation, and will certainly take the cheapest road if available. The irony is that you control what rates they can charge, and can mandate where the resources are allocated for providing citizens with that power. Instead of taking the needed steps to develop a 21st century energy policy with a staged increase in renewable energy use and energy conservation, we are moving regressively in policy. This act takes Arizona off the map for renewable energy jobs and the business that could be strengthened in the state! Politicians always talk about making policy to enhance jobs, you certainly are doing the opposite.

I want Tucson to become a solar city. I would encourage every effort to continue the rebate programs and policies to continue to seed the development of roof-top and large scale solar plants. It is only fair that the electric company can claim these on the grid to meet the renewal criteria if they are appropriately compensating those feeding the grid! I know of many business owners and homeowners that have gone solar. I would like to see you lead by example and put solar on your own roof-tops and create the policy such that TEP would aggressively partner with the community to lead the way to having Tucson be a national example for sustainability initiatives including renewable energy.

The public is watching. The industry is watching. Businesses are going to make decisions that affect employment based on your policy. Please be responsible and at least hold the current standards in place, which the citizens have been pleased with, and consider raising the bar in the decades to come.

Sincerely,
Dr. Timothy M. Krone

Subject: RENEWABLE ENERGY

The ACC recently made sweeping changes to the state's renewable energy programs. I oppose these changes. We need to encourage use and development of renewables, not discourage them.
